Mining School Matriculation and Tuition Bill.

Goes Into Effect Next Year.

sindents Will Make Their Annual Trip After the Easter Vacation More About the Gulls.

The authorities of the Mining School are satisfied with the bill providing for matriculation fee and tuition, but think that the time for it to go into effect might have been deferred for another year instead of the beginning of the next chool year. The change in name to the Michigan college of mines is only what the work done demands. The matriculation lee is $10 for Michigan students and $25 for non-residents of the State. The tuition for Michigan students is placed at $25 per year by the legislature and for nonresidents the board of control is authorized to fix a sum anywhere between $50 and $200 per year.

The Mining School vacation begins today and lasts until Monday April 26. On that date the class in mining and mine surveying will report at Champion when underground work will be done in the Beacon mine. The mines at Ishpemand Negaunee will be visited. This trip s an annual feature of the school for its class in this department. The fact that the school is located in the midst of a mining country makes the trip at a minimum cost for the student, a thing not possible with eastern technical schools of mines.

G. W. Emery thinks there is a great industry going to waste at our very doors. The gulls which are to be found in great numbers about Isle Royale are quite a sized bird, and they are nearly all leathers. The foundation of the bird is not much larger than a robin and the rest is feathers and down, which the above named gentleman thinks ought to be of a marketable quality. C. M. Coon pushes a good thing along by suggesting that the men hired to catch and plack the guils could be kept mainly on the eggs of the bird found about the 1-de Royale rocks in great quantities.

The concert by the Boston Ideal banjo, mandolin and guitar club, at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium last evening was pronounced by many to be the best number of the star course. The organization has bad the same membership for years and therefore may attempt together man musical feats that musicians of equ-1 capacity could not perform for lack of practice together. The program given last evening was a unique one in many respects, being composed of so-called popular selections as well as those of a classical nature.

We are now showing the finest line of new spring patterns of carpets ever shown in this county, they are not the old chestnuts that have become so familiar to everyone, but are fresh, new, never seen before, and are taking the purchasing public by storm. Please call and examine our stock before purchasing elsewhere and you will be convinced that we have the best carpets for the least money. and don't you forget it.

I HJMAS HUGHES' SURPRISE

Astonished at the Freedom From Animo ity of the Blue and the Gray.

The April Century is a Grant memorial number, signalizing the formal dedication of the tomb of the great commander. There are a number of articles relating to Grant, one of them being "A Blue and Gray Friendship," by John R. Proctor, describing the relations between Grant and Buckner. Mr. Proctor says:

About 15 years ago I visited Lookout mountain with a party of gentlemen and stood with them on the pinnacle overlooking the beautiful valley of cast Tennesse and range after range of mountains visible from our point of vantage, from the Great Smokies of North Carolina to the Cumber land of Kentucky. The battlefield of Missionary ridge formed the immediate foreground of this vast panorama. In our party were men who had served with distinction as officers in the opposing armies in that battle, and naturally the incidents of the conflict formed an interesting subject of conversation between them, with much good humored badinage and friendly interchange of views.

Mr. Thomas Hughes, the author of 'Tom Brown," who had listened with an expression of surprised interest to the conversation between these friendly foes, turning to me, said, "Why, this is extraordi nary, most extraordinary." "What?" asked. "Why, that these men, standing in full view of the field where only a few years ago they were trying to slay each other should be discussing the incidents of that battle calmly, kindly, I might almost say in a brotherly spirit, with no trace of bitterness or ill teeling. Now, I doubt if we in England could discuss the wars of the roses or the Cramwellian wars with such an entire freedom from antag-

Could Mr. Hughes have witnessed a few years later the funeral cortege of the great general who had hurled the success ful columns against the southern lines along the crest of Missionary ridge and who had brought final defeat to the south ern arms in Virginia his astonishment would have been greater, and his pride in the "kin beyond sea" would have increased on seeing that there were no more sincers mourners than the southern generals who came from faraway homes to pay a last tribute of friendship to the memory of

PUTTING IT ON PROVIDENCE.

Abhorrent Idea Expressed by Some About the Armenian Massacres,

A newspaper—a careful Boston newspa per-in telling the other day of the address of a woman missionary of long experience in Turkey to a Boston audience represented her as saying of the Armenian massacres that the victims, being Christians, recognized that these things could only exist with the approval of God and that they were ready to accept the slaughters as the result of the divine will." It is very possible that she did not speak the precise words imputed to her, but the doctrine they express is familiar and seems to the present lay writer to be sufficiently erroneous and misleading to be worth a remonstrance. The idea that the Armenian massacres and all horrors of the sort, as well as the plague in India, and famine, pestilence and sudden death in all their manifestations occur with the approval of God," is not only abhorrent to our sense of divine goodness, but altegether unnecessary to our belief in omnipotence.

Is even the mere instinct of self preservation opposed to the will of God. If we suspeet that there is sewer gas in our houses, we do not bow to any supposed will of God and try to be patient under it. We get the plumbers in and rip up the premises and try to get it out. If we get diphtheria germs in our throats, we don't kiss the We call in the doctor and try the latest serum. If we fall into the water, we thank God that we have learned to swim. What should we do if Kurds come to knock us on the head and carry off our women? Would you tell us to kiss the rod, and that whatever happened was with

Oh, good but illogical missionary! You God's approval? would say to us: 'Fight! Fight! Kill!
Die, if you must, but die hard. Since whatever happens happens with God's approval, see to it, if you can, that it hap-pens with your approval also." Perhaps you can't say that to the Armenians. Pos-sibly the odds are too great, the conditions too desperate. But at least don't say that they are massacred with God's approval nor tell us that you have bid them perish meekly .- "The Point of View" in April Scribner's.

A COWGIRL'S HEART.

IT WAS WON BY MEANS OF A WILD RIDE ABOARD A BUFFALO.

A Coquette of the Plains and Her Ideal. Her Husband Must Excel Her In All the Maneuvers of Her Craft - Young | Fifth street. Dupree "Corralled" Her.

The recent wedding of Myrtle Morrison, the famous girl broncho rider of South Dakota, and Frank Dupree, a part blood Sioux, caused quite a sensation among the residents of the Sionx reservation and in adjacent territory

Miss Morrison is a handsome young cowgiri, noted far and near for her proficiency in the art of horse training. She has had many admirers among the frontier beans, but always declared that she would never marry any man who could not ride, shoot and throw a lariat better than she could, and as such men are extremely scarce it appeared probable Miss Myrtle was documed to a life of single blessedness However, last fall, hay being scarce on the upper Bad river range her father removed his family and stock to Big Plum creek, a tributary of the Chevenne river. Here Myrtle first made the acquaintance of the good looking daring young half breed who has since become her husband

Frank Dupree is a splendid horseman, thorough cow hand, and apparently devoid of fear. The Duprees are among the wealthiest stockmen in the state, counting their cattle by the thousand, and Frank, like many other half bloods in that section, has received a very fair education. Still, Myrtle was not much attracted toward the swarthy young man until one day they happened to be riding together and came in sight of a herd of 60 or 70 buffalo, which the Dupree family have raised on their own range from a few calves caught years ago, when buffalo meat was the principal article of diet for the entire Sioux nation. Although this herd is kept from straying far from the home ranch by old man Dupree's cowboys they are fully as wild as their ancestors, who once blackened the prairie west of Chamberlain with their shaggy bodies. The young couple rode up quite close to the herd before the animals were aware of their presence, and Frank, in a spirit of bravado, urged his broncho alongside of a huge bull buffalo and sprang from his saddle to the animal's In an instant the whole herd was stampeding madly across the proirie, with the old bull leading the van. Dupree's foolhardiness had placed him in an extremely dangerous predicament If he jumped or fell from the buffalo's back, he would certainly be trampled to death by the pursuing herd, and if he retained his seat until the animal became tired and sulky it was oqually certain that the brute would make a furious assault upon him the moment he dismounted.

So all he could do was to cling to the animal's back and await an opportunity to escape. But it was not until the herd had run fully two miles that he saw the least chance of leaving the back of his novel steed and escaping alive. Fortune at last favored him, and the animal ran for some distance along a deep, narrow washout, with almost perpendicular sides reaching to a height of fully 20 feet. Here Frank sprang from his seat and slid down the bank of the depres sion just in time to escape being tram pled upon by the closely following herd.

Meanwhile Myrtle had lassoed her companion's horse and was hurrying after the rapidly retreating buffalo. She reached the spot where Frank had dismounted just as he was climbing, dirty and bedraggled, to the top of the ravine. The cowboy did not feel very proud of his exploit, but nevertheless the little episode had touched a tender spot in the girl's heart, and a short time ago the bells of the Cherry Creek mission church announced the wedding of this typical frontier couple. -St. Louis Globe Dem-
